INDUSTRIAL CLEANING SERVICES

HIGH PRESSURE CLEANING

The Interwaste High Pressure (HP), Ultra High (UHP) and Super High (SHP) cleaning systems utilise high pressure water, with no abrasives, for the removal of material deposits from various surfaces. Typical applications include the removal of silt from heat exchangers, tar from holding tanks, rubber from concrete surfaces such as runways and drive-ways and crude oil from tanks.

TANK CLEANING AND CONFINED SPACE OPERATIONS

Tank and confined space cleaning is a high-risk specialised service which demands technical expertise, skilled personnel and specially designed equipment. Interwaste has succeeded in the safe and efficient removal of many waste types from a variety of industries and tank types.

These services require special procedures to be followed for every project. Operational plans must be submitted to the Department of Labour and full clearance obtained prior to any personnel entering a tank or other confined space.

STRUCTURAL DEDUSTING

Structural Dedusting is a specialised service involving risks not normally encountered in industrial cleaning. In certain circumstances the removal of dust from industrial structures can become explosive due to a static electricity build-up.

Interwaste employs specialised equipment and technical expertise in order to safely offer this service which can be utilised for the cleaning of factories, power stations, and various large production equipment.

FACILITY CLEANING SERVICES

Interwaste Cleaning provides industrial and commercial clients with a comprehensive range of cleaning and maintenance services. Efficiencies are achieved by separating waste as early as possible in the cleaning process.

The need for double handling is removed, as is the risk of any cross contamination between hazardous and non hazardous wastes. Savings as a result of these efficiencies pass back to the client in the form of generally lower maintenance costs.
